Property Description

Nestled into the hills of Manuel Antonio, the Casa Sonidos del Agua is a unique and wonderfully artistic home which offers sundrenched vistas and unique sense of privacy. The home itself is a relatively new construction built several years ago by one of the premier architects in Costa Rica, Andres Morales, who has incorporated some of his most iconic water features and design elements into his architectural masterpiece. Casa Sonidos del Agua (sounds of water), as you might expect the centerpiece of the home is an elaborate water featuring both an internal waterfall and wall wash, along with a two story waterfall on the front of the home and infinity edge swimming pool. Regardless of where you are in the home you are always surrounded by the calming water views or sounds and sense of water in the home. There are a total of 3 levels to the home with the main level being comprised of an enormous open space, ideal for entertaining with a chef's kitchen, dining and living area which all spill onto the front terraces and pool deck.
