Property Description

Seller will accept crypto! This unique dwelling is pure utopia. The location is the largest mountain corridor between four countries where wildlife can pass without encountering mankind. It is a rare oak forest teeming with resplendent quetzals (the sacred Shaman bird of the Mayans), tapirs, mountain lions, panthers and more. The elevation is 8,000 feet. Average temperature 65 during the day and 47 at night. The panoramic view is of 17 mountain peaks including Chirripo, the highest peak in Costa Rica and on clear days, the Pacific Ocean. The area is popular with extreme adventure mountain bikers, hiking trekkers, rock climbers, paragliding, horseback riding and wildlife adventures. The charming forest cabin comes with a chimney and wood burning stove and an electric eco-heating device. There is a rare magnolia wood entry door and oak hardwood floors. Rare black and green bamboo cover the walls and ceiling throughout the house.
