Property Description

Located about 800 meters above sea level in an area with a very cool climate with lots of sun during the day in a sparsely populated area with lots of nature and peace around. It is located at the end of a public street where traffic is minimum and away from the main street so the silence is absolute. The center of San Isidro is about 35 minutes away in a route where you will find wallmart, gas stations, supermarkets, health services, education, cinema, mall and much more. The property has large areas in pasture and relatively flat where there is great potential for cultivation, breeding or even development in addition to an all year round creek where water is extracted for the gardens, the house has public water from ASADA. It has an internal concrete entrance with remote access of about 300 meters to reach the house so that once you get there the only thing you will see around is the green nature.
