Property Description

Located high above the lush valleys of Pérez Zeledón, this exceptional 3.5-acre retreat offers a rare blend of privacy, climate, and breathtaking natural beauty in the mountains near San Isidro de El General. Set at an elevation of 3,000 feet above sea level, the property enjoys one of the most sought-after climates in Southern Costa Rica—cool, refreshing days in the 70s and crisp evenings dipping into the 60s. This natural air conditioning creates a comfortable year-round environment without the need for artificial cooling, making it perfect for extended stays or seasonal escapes. The land itself is beautifully forested and positioned along the top of a ridge, offering expansive panoramic views that stretch across the entire valley and toward the majestic Chirripó Mountain Range. By day, enjoy endless green mountain vistas; by night, watch the twinkling lights of San Isidro illuminate the valley below—a truly captivating setting.
